Subject: Special-Lite introduces new color choices for architectural entrances

Special-Lite, Inc. has announced a new set of standard fiberglass reinforced polyester (FRP) colors and a revised collection of Kynar® paint colors for its commercial entrances. The new color palette was developed in response to feedback from architects, customers, and end users from across the country.

Beginning immediately, an updated set of nine different through-colored FRP materials is now available. Five standard FRP colors—Sandstone, Seawolf, Slate Grey, Military Blue and Boysenberry—are new. Three classic colors (Beige, Light Grey and Dark Bronze) are carryovers. Hartford Green, which was previously announced, is also now available as a standard color.

Special-Lite's collection of 20 established Kynar paint colors has also been updated and simplified. Each of the company's standard FRP colors now has a matching Kynar paint color, and several popular custom colors are now available as standard paint colors. In addition, all 20 paint colors are now two-coat finishes.

Discontinued FRP colors (Black, White, Blue, Red, Green, and Dark Grey) will still be available for orders received before August 31st, 2005. Special-Lite also offers a custom FRP color program for orders involving 100 door leaves or more in response to the growing popularity of special colors as a unifying theme for school systems and other large commercial customers.
